HE FOUND NO ESCAPE.

Edward Reinhold Flee from a Chastel Mortgage Shark.

Edward Reinhold was arrested at No. 214 Lake avenue yesterday by Detective Darr on a warrant sworn out in Saginaw, where he is wanted for moving furniture from that place to this city, upon which a man named Price held a chattel mortgage. Deputy Sheriff Crabb came after him last night. Reinhold says that two years ago an emergency arose when it was necessary for him to have $100. He mortgaged his furniture and agreed to pay 10 per cent a month. He has since paid the exorbitant interest of 120 per cent per annum and reduced the principal to $125. He thought he had paid enough and concluded to free himself from the shark's grasp by leaving Saginaw and coming to Grand Rapids.

Catch the Lost Deer.

The deer which broke from the stockade in Ball park while pursued by dogs, and which has been mourned as missing, was found yesterday. It was noticed in the vicinity of Wealthy avenue and Centennial street and word was sent to the police. Detectives Darr, Jakesway, Gast and Patrolman Van Dine went to the place designated where they found the animal. It was some time before it was cornered, but was finally caught at the corner of Baxter and Centennial streets. It is now safe in the park.

WAS IT HYDROPHOBIA?

Remarkable Experiences of a Woman While Traveling in a Railroad Car.

Allow me to relate to you an experience unique, as far as I know, in the annals of railway adventures.

I, in my husband's unavoidable absence, crossed alone in the middle of dreadful weather from Dublin to Holyhead, and having had a rough passage I sought and found the solitude of an empty second class carriage. After the usual delay we started, and as the train moved a gentleman, for he had every appearance of one, jumped in. I looked curiously at him, wondering why he should have delayed getting on till the last moment and remembering that, for better or worse, I was compelled to enjoy or endure his society for a considerable time, as the train was an express and stopped but seldom. He was a man of perhaps thirty-five years of age, and from the few surreptitious glances I was able to give while he was arranging himself and his rug I decided he was mild and harmless looking.

Not many minutes had, however, passed, when a dog's bark in the carriage alarmed me not a little, but, sir, you can well imagine that I felt frozen to my seat with an indescribable terror, while my hair seemed to rise from the roots and stand on end, when I became aware that it was the man in the corner who was barking like a large angry dog! No words can convey to you the horror I felt at the horrible thoughts passed through my mind—"Hydrophobia! he will tear me to pieces in a minute!"

But, paralyzed as I was, I yet remembered that I could stop the train, and shrivel even to move my eyelids, tried to remember on which side the communication cord was. On this, I thankfully perceived. But if I did stop the train, how could I account to the guard for my action? What proof should I have to offer that the gentleman in the corner had been barking? Good heavens! he was barking again, more angrily and furiously than before, growling and snapping. Terror-stricken, a horrible fascination nevertheless compelled me to look him in the face, and oh! blessed reaction of feeling, I saw he was asleep; yes, sir, sound asleep, and barking as he slept.

Steadfastly I watched him for nearly an hour—he barked only occasionally, or would he wake to fall in single file on his fellow travelers? I, however, became convinced that he was sleeping like a child—or rather, like a dog—he snored loudly and growled from time to time; and at last (terribly anxious moment for me) woke with an audible shudder, and, looking decidedly dazed, turned toward me (as if to see if I had observed the shudder) and remarked quite calmly, "What better weather for traveling!" And he slept no more till I left the train.

Now, have you ever heard of a like experience (for no fancy tale is this, but literally true from beginning to end), or that human beings ever dream they are animals? And yet, if not, what was it?

Strangely enough, we had not received this letter two hours when we heard of another case. The sufferer, this time a laborer, barked so loudly and so exactly like a dog that his comrades, believing him to be in some way uncanny, struck. His employer threatened to send for a doctor and have his throat cut open for examination, and the unlucky wretch, frightened to death, rushed to back for a few days. His dream was, in fact, a rare nervous affection.—London Spectator.

Women at Ball.

"Why cannot some of the society leaders have the strength of mind and sufficient sense of propriety to inaugurate a new order of things in ball etiquette?" said the exasperated good natured man, after a wearisome season. "If a few right minded, intelligent women would only take umbrage at the really humiliating position that is held by their sex in a ballroom, and would combine together to act independently of the unwritten law that compels every woman to be an abjectly helpless creature as soon as she dons evening dress, they would bestow an inestimable benefit upon men as well as upon women."

"Some of my sex have become, I am sorry to say, quite callous to the suffering around them, but for my part I am too soft hearted to resist the wistful eyes and pitiful stereotyped smile of those who have no partners for supper. There is something pathetic about the helplessness about these poor creatures that appeal to my chivalry, but what nonsense it all is. Why cannot women walk from group to group, or go down to supper with another woman with the same ease as at an afternoon tea? Given the same conditions of freedom, and balls would be delightful instead of being so often unmitigated bore."—New York Tribune.

Mr. Manhattan Beach is well known as one of the heartiest eaters in Harlem. He can do more eating without a rest than any two men in the city. Of late his eyesight has become affected, and he was asked if his appetite was as good as ever.

"Well, I should say so," was the response. "I can't read the bill of fare as well as I used to. Yesterday at dinner I overlooked two kinds of soup and slipped up on the custard pie. I can never tell now when I am through dinner. If my eyesight does not improve I am afraid I'll starve to death some day."—Texas Siftings.

Why No Remonstrated Seated.

A Modern prince once asked all those of his congregation who loved God and feared their wives to stand up. "Instantly," says the narrator, "the whole gathering rose, save one. When the priest observed this he approached the solitary exception and said: 'I see that you remain seated. Is it because you do not love God?' 'No,' answered the man, 'I love God, but I do not love my wife.'" vented the man; I saw that." "That is a handsome job done for your wife," said the countryman, "my wife gave me such a beating this morning that I am almost helpless."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Effects of Camphor on Plants.

The alleged power of camphor to soothe seeds or stimulate their germination has been shown by the experiments of M. Henry de Varenny to have no real existence. Various kinds of seeds were sown in sand saturated with water containing camphor, as advised by horticulturists, and the germination of all was slower, instead of more rapid, than that of similar seeds in water without camphor. Germination was even retarded by camphor vapor in the air, the water having to evaporate.—New York Telegram.

Apples Grow in All States.

Apples are grown in almost every part of the republic, but they grow best in two states—New York and North Carolina. The second named produces only one fine apple, but that is surpassed by none other. Many varieties are raised in this state, the best of which are the Baldwin, the King and the Newtown pippin.—New York Evening Sun.

The Result of Observation.

He—I don't see how a girl can marry a man she's known only two weeks! She—And I don't see how she can marry one she's known longer.—Life.

A Warning to Favorite Sons.

The little boy picked himself out of the puddle where his rude playmates had thrown him. He wiped the mud from his velvet trousers, his silk stockings and his lace collar, and straightened out his long golden curls as well as their demoralized and bedraggled condition would permit.

"This," he said bitterly, "is what comes of being mamma's little pet!"—Chicago Tribune.

Expert Criticism.

"I see you have written your poetry in gas meter, Mr. Rimer." "Gas meter, sir?" "Yes, there are many redundant feet."—New York Sun.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Menasha and Menasha, Wis.

Are situated on the Wisconsin Central Lines, at the foot of Lake Winnebago, and like other towns on or near this sheet of water, are very important manufacturing centers. The general government recognizing the value of the location for manufacturing purposes built extensive dams, the lake forming a water head of unfailing capacity, hence there is furnished a water power practically unlimited in its capacity. The famous Menasha water power is the first of the great hydraulic powers, and is made by a ten-foot fall of the river between Lake Winnebago and Buttes des Morts. The water is carried along two canals, one nearly a mile in length, which run parallel with the river. On their banks are located the many prosperous manufacturing establishments, including five large paper mills, flour mills, iron works and others too numerous to mention. The Wisconsin Central Lines is the direct route from Chicago and Milwaukee, affording unequalled service.

She reckons well who does her housecleaning and washing (or has her servants do this work) with PYLE'S PEARLINE.

Why?

Because Pearline makes the largest saving all around; saves half the time; half the labor—more than half the wear. Do you know you don't have to rub the clothes when washed with Pearline? This saves the woman and makes the clothes last longer (besides, they look better). What can be harder on woman's hands than bobbing up and down over a wash-board? What can be harder on the clothes—anything harder don't exist. Millions of women know these facts well; it takes many millions of packages of PEARLINE to supply their demands for it. You have only to prove these facts and you'll demand it. The best way is—try it. Costs little and every grocer has it.

Beware of cheap imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE! JAMES PYLE, New York.
